Curricular Practical Training (CPT)

Student on F-1 immigration status are admitted to the United States for the sole purpose of earning an education. Being on such status, they are permitted limited employment benefits. On-Campus Employment (up to 20 hours per week during Fall and Winter Semesters and full-time during the summer and other school breaks) is available to all F-1 students who maintain valid status. Off-Campus employment can be engaged only if prior written authorization is obtained. Except for off-campus employment due to Economic Hardship, all other off-campus employment for F-1 students is called Practical Training. Off-campus employment may be called internship, work-study, coop, etc., but for purposes of immigration, students on F-1 status it is authorized only as practical training.

Every student who has maintained F-1 immigration status to pursue a degree objective is eligible to apply for OPTIONAL PRATICAL TRAINING. The petition for this is made to the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) with recommendation from the International Students and Scholars Office. Generally, students avail this benefit when they are close to completion of the degree program. This allows the opportunity to work in the field of study and find an employer who may want to petition with USCIS to continue the employment beyond the practical training months.

There are a few curricula that require a student to engage in off-campus work in order to complete the degree and graduate. Examples of such curricula are Clinical Psychology, Pharmacy, Teacher Training, Social Work, etc. For such students, there is the availability of Curricular Practical Training. The practical training must be an integral part of the curriculum of the student. This is not applicable when a student wishes to get work experience, wants to work during summer months, needs to make money, or has found an employer who desires to hire him or her. There are specific documents that need to be completed for getting approval for CPT. Upon employment authorization for CPT, the International students and Scholars Office must inform the USCIS about the student working off-campus. This is recorded in the employment history of the individual at USCIS. Such authorization is also indicated on the student's SEVIS I-20.

If a student misrepresents the condition such as drops the courses directly after receiving authorization for a CPT, it may be interpreted as committing immigration fraud. Therefore, USCIS could deny the student other benefits in the future. The student may suffer serious consequences with USCIS and visa issuance on other petitions. There is greater scrutiny by USCIS in recent years and therefore students must make sure that all the information given is correct to avoid any immigration problems. Work related (H-1B) and permanent residence (Green Card) petitions trigger careful review by USCIS of the individual's employment history. The endorsement for CPT from the International Students and Scholars Office, certification from the professor and other documentation may not be arguable against future unfavorable adjudication by USCIS.
